

Table of contents

Intro	9
Reflections on Community Policing and citizen participation	15
Marleen Easton & Dominique Van Ryckeghem
1. Introduction	15
2. Defining citizen participation	16
3. Practices in Belgium referring to citizen participation	18
3.1 Civilianization	19
3.2 Civilians for the police	19
3.3 Policing by civilians	22
4. Reflections in relation to policing traditions, new models of democratic policing and community relations	23
References	27
Explaining support for vigilantism and punitiveness: assessing the role of perceived procedural fairness, ethnocentrism, authoritarianism and anomia	31
Anjuli Van Damme & Lieven Pauwels
1. Introduction and goal of the present study	31
2. The concept of procedural fairness as an anchoring point for the present study	33
3. Anomia, authoritarianism and ethnocentrism as antecedents of a lack of perceived procedural fairness	34
4. Support for vigilantism and punitiveness as consequences of a lack of perceived procedural fairness?	36
5. Hypotheses addressed in the present study	37
6. Methods and techniques of analysis	39
6.1 A latent variable approach	39
6.2 Direct and indirect effects	39
7. Measurement of constructs	40
8. Data	41
9. Results	42
10. Discussion	45
Appendix	48
References	51
The Belgian informal economy	55
Dominique Boels
1. Introduction	55
2. Conceptual framework	58
2.1 The informal economy	58
2.2 Seasonal work	59
3. Methodology	60
3.1 Qualitative approach	60

3.2	Document analyses	61
3.3	File analyses	62
3.4	Semi-structured interviews	63
3.5	Tips and tricks for the future	67
4	Ethical considerations	68
5	Conclusion	69
	References	71
Electronic monitoring: convicts' experiences in Belgium		77
Delphine Vanhaelemeesch & Tom Vander Beken
1	Introduction	77
2	Electronic monitoring in Belgium	78
3	Methodology	80
3.1	Sample selection and data collection	80
3.2	Data analysis	81
3.3	Limitations	81
4	Findings and analysis	82
4.1	General experience of EM	82
4.2	Social life	83
4.3	Work and finances	85
4.4	Freedom	87
4.5	Emotional and physical effects	89
4.6	Technique	90
5	Concluding comments	92
	References	93
The process of radicalization: an exploratory empirical study		97
Jannie Noppe, Antoinette Verhage & Marleen Easton
1	Introduction	97
2	The process of radicalization: a dynamic model	98
3	Methodology	101
4	Results meta-analysis of international research reports	104
5	Interviews with gatekeepers	105
5.1	Group or individual process	105
5.2	Ideology	106
5.3	Breeding Ground	106
5.4	Triggers	107
5.5	Isolation	108
5.6	Recruitment	108
6	The case 'Muriel Degauque'	109
7	Research conclusions	111
8	Preventive measures for dealing with radicalization	112
8.1	The role of civil society	112
8.2	Policing radicalization	114
8.3	Civil society and the police: complementary actors in the prevention of radicalization	115

References	116
Exploring the factor structure of measures of confidence in procedural justice and performance of the criminal justice system by actor	119
Anjuli Van Damme, Lieven Pauwels & Nicole Haas
1 Introduction	119
2 Goal of the present study: measuring dimensions of confidence by actor	120
3 Why studying theoretical dimensions of confidence in the criminal justice system?	121
4 Why measuring procedural justice and performance in the criminal justice system by actor?	122
5 Reliability and Correlational validity as criteria for the assessment of a measurement instrument	123
6 The latent variables approach and the study of non-random error due to common unknown variance	124
7 Introducing the questionnaire	126
8 Data	127
9 Analysis plan	128
10 Discussion and conclusion	135
Appendix	137
References	138
Anti-corruption policies in private companies: a new business trend or a real concern and for whom?	141
Gudrun Vande Walle
1 Introduction	141
2 The methodology	142
3 Exploring anti-corruption policy in the private sector	143
4 Is anti-corruption policy a hot topic in the Belgian private sector?	144
5 Legislation / anti-corruption policy	145
6 The weight of penalties	146
7 Profiling companies sensitive to corruption	147
8 Anti-corruption in the private sector: state of the art	149
9 Anti-corruption in the private sector: how to make it effective?	151
10 Conclusion	153
References	154
Variance in avoidance behaviour between residential neighbourhoods – context or composition? A multilevel approach	157
Caroline Mellgren, Lieven Pauwels & Marie Torstensson Levander
1 Introduction	157
2 Collective efficacy and individual differences in avoidance behaviour	159
3 The role of disorder	160
4 The present study	161
5 Measurement of constructs	162
5.1 Dependent variable	162

5.2	Independent variables	162
6	Discussion and conclusion	167
	References	169
	Authors	173
	Participating Reviewers	175